

Eirik the Red's Saga

Anonymous

Translated by John Sephton (b. 1835)

In this saga, the events that led to Eirik the Red's banishment to Greenland are chronicled, as well as Leif Eirikson's discovery of Vinland the Good (a place where wheat and grapes grew naturally), after his longboat was blown off-course. By geographical details, this place is surmised to be present-day Newfoundland, and is likely the first European discovery of the American mainland, some five centuries before Christopher Columbus's journey. (Wikipedia.)

Total running time: 1:07:28

Read by Julian Jamison

Cover design by Kathryn Delaney
Painting by Christian Krogh, Leif Eiriksson Discovers America, (1893)

EIRIK THE RED'S SAGA

EIRIK THE RED'S SAGA